Ask "Why?" after short answers. Let them read some questions aloud, and write some answers if they want to.

1. What is the hardest thing about being six?

2. What are you really good at now that you weren't last year?

3. What is the best book you read, or had read to you, this year?

4. What do you and your friends talk about?

5. What do grown-ups get wrong about kids?

6. If you were in charge of our family for a day, what would happen?

7. What makes someone brave?

8. Tell me the story of a tooth you lost, or one that's wiggly now.

9. What is the most interesting thing you learned at school this year?

10. What would you do with a hundred dollars?

11. Tell me a knock-knock joke. Did you make it up?

12. What is a new word you learned, and what does it mean?

13. What do you worry about?

14. What is the best day you can remember?

15. If you could go anywhere in the world, where would you go?

16. What is something about you that I might not know?

Your three questions for your grown-up, and the answers
